About NTRS

The National Therapeutic Recreation Society (NTRS), a branch of the National Recreation and Park Association, is the leading membership organization of practitioners, educators, students, consumers and friends advancing the belief that leisure and recreation are basic human rights and are critical to health, quality of life and happiness. As basic rights, leisure and recreation must be available to all people, including those with illnesses, disabilities or other conditions that may restrict health, independence and quality of life. NTRS supports its membership in their informed endeavors to serve the consumers of therapeutic recreation in ways that are helpful, empowering, inclusive, dignified and just.
